These fingerless gloves are in a collaboration with Borgo de'Pazzi for their Free Pattern Fridays 2020.

The Time Turner Gloves were inspired by Harry Potter's Hermione Granger and her Time Turner. There have been so many times this year that I have wished to either go back in time to another year with more happiness, or just skip this year entirely and travel to the future. If only I had a time turner! I hope that as you start this New Year and make these gloves that they bring you a little hope and magic for 2021!

These fingerless gloves work from the wrist towards the fingers. After working the wrist you will work simultaneously the thumb gusset and the chart to create the ornament design for the top of the hand. The thumb stitches will be set aside for finishing the hand, then you will finish the thumb to finish the gloves.

Notes:

- For this pattern, at the beginning I recommend keeping 19 sts on either side of the magic loop. This way, as you work the thumb gusset, you will always have the same number of stitches on both sides throughout.
- Both gloves are similar, but the chart will be placed on the beginning of the row for the right hand and the last part of the row for the left hand.
- This glove is worked in the round, so you will always be working on a Right Side.
- On every round of the chart, you will do at least 2 cables. There are no wrong side rows, and no rows of working straight in the round. All rounds will require a cable needle.
- Marker is used on the left hand to simplify the pattern and to know when to start the chart portion of the pattern. It is assumed that you will always slip this marker, so it will not be written to sm (slip marker).

Abbreviations:
